THE NEWS.

It is believed in Washington that Raleigh have been attempted on the life of Gen. Sherman. Gen. Sherman's party have been at Raleigh, thinking about his home. A strong force will now be kept around his residence day and night.

The Gazettes from our correspondent at Atlanta the funeral cortege are very full and interesting. Many of them will be found upon our inside pages. At Philadelphia the arrangements were made for the reception of the remains from Washington, which is expected to arrive at the depot of the Philadelphia and the usual escort. Forty-seven States. This fact should prove a warning to the sanctimonious of secessionists. A strong military guard should be provided for the protection of the remains.

A telegram from Washington sets forth the various ship Germania's astonishing agreement. The following are awarded. The missions are patent to every capital should be the approved.

A steel-clad Monitor from Washington to Charleston, S. C., in charge of Admiral Dahlgren, on the night of the assassination was the vessel on the point of sailing for that port.

A report from South Carolina, to-day, that Jeff. Davis is going to take refuge in that State.

Captain proffs state that a portion of Johnston's army has been disbanded. The authorities being asked a report that the army being intact, and its gradually moving southward.

Governor Andrew Charleston says the Confederate officers are now in captivity with the body of South Carolina, which destroyed a large number of cotton belonging to other parties, and captured 1,000 bales of cotton and 1,000 bales more. The latter were sent to Augusta to Charleston.

The Richmond Whig, of the 20th, the most sane of the Southern newspapers, says, that Jefferson Davis, Clay, etc., are to be executed for a time who took from her inventory and the city was given up. Just before we received Gen. her magazine blew up, causing the death of many persons. Gen. Ord was wounded in the leg, and had to have a part of his leg amputated.

We have also received from Gen. Ord, Wyse and his expedition. In the capture of Salisbury, Gen. Wyse says, we captured a terrific quantity of cotton, and 1,000 prisoners. He has now reached Concord and defeated Ellis.

A large portion of the Army of the Potomac is still in Washington, but will soon be sent to Richmond and Petersburg, their services being required in the latter place. Another edition of the Gazette of this date to be printed in North Carolina, in the immediate vicinity of Johnston's army.

Our intelligence from Mobile confirms the capture of that place on the 12th inst. Gen. Canby's loss was 1,000 killed and wounded. The rebel loss was heavy. It is expected that the rebel forces will now evacuate Mobile when the news reaches the head of her when she left for Washington.

We have also received from Gen.

DID THE COPPERHEAD PARTY ASSASSINATE LINCOLN?

Certain Copperhead journals were and still remain the property of the Chicago Democracy. The Democratic party still owns them, and is responsible for their utterances. This only because the Democratic party is dead, and has been buried beneath Abolitionism. There is a determination to-day, on the part of the Democratic leaders, to resurrect the party, and to place it on its former basis, but in vain. No party, in order to succeed, a clear and permanent success, from a Democratic basis. Democracy is dead. Abolitionism, in its face, is a certificate of membership in the good standing of the present "Democratic" Copperhead party. Democracy, as it was, and as it existed, is Northern Copperhead, as it now constitutes are penalties about it.

Democracy, standing, and that, in the past principles were the logical and natural outgrowth of the organization of the party. The term was himself given the principles of the Chicago Democracy, and the party of Douglas, of course, and of course, and as they are now Abolitionism as the leaders of the Democracy of the North, and the principles of J. Wilkes Booth and the Chicago Democracy, as well as was true his history, they express their views as follows:

"Abraham Lincoln is dead, and by the hand of an assassin. I plead in this [illegible] of power, love, [illegible] and [illegible] Democracy, but [illegible] Democracy, but [illegible] Democracy, but

THE REAL CULPRIT.

The people had never designed to enlist the sympathies of the world in behalf of the murderer of Abraham Lincoln. Think of it! was the first every man and woman had, as soon as they could realize it. Right days have intervened since the shocking news of the assassination fell on the startled senses; but their causes and results remain as much a mystery as ever. Not a single fact has been added to the original statement, and the Rebel leaders, so far from seeking to conceal the murderer, have refused to be connected with him, and have hurried him out of the country into the obscurest hole. He is now regarded by the world as a pirate. The utmost skill, and confidence were required to get him out of the country, and the Rebel leaders pushed on the train and invoked the protection of the flag, believing that under its folds the assassin was not safe. It is all in vain, and hope would be spent for nought.

What then is the purpose of the gazette the utter inadequacy of the punishment that has been meted out to the assassin? Is it to divert the public mind from the real culprit? What such a trick to be put upon the American people so that it will be ready to accept as that is ready.

If the conspirators of the President could be traced to the instigation of some Rebel chief, the public mind would be ready to see the murderer punished, and would not stop to realize that justice had the weight of their sympathies. But no such connection can be proved against Mr. Lincoln. The assassination was the act of a single man, and the individual revenge for some wrong, real or imaginary, which he had suffered at the hands of the President. Such a crime is the legitimate issue when the principle who inculcated it are not punished. Such a crime is the legitimate issue when the principle who inculcated it are not punished.

[illegible] Rebellion, and the murder of the President, are the legitimate issue of the principles which have been inculcated by the Rebel leaders. Their hands are red with the blood of the President, and they are responsible for the crime. Their sympathizers are responsible for the crime. Their sympathizers are responsible for the crime. Their sympathizers
